Introduction

Advent is a time to hear about and prepare for the coming of Jesus. This Advent begins with the voice of Isaiah sharing God’s message of hope, a light to those who walk in darkness. To a people in exile far from home, Isaiah’s message of comfort is a welcome one. As we move week by week toward the celebration of Jesus’ birth, we, too, hear a message of hope and comfort for a world seeking peace. As we wait for the Messiah, we learn of his ancestors, faithful throughout generations, and the announcement of his birth to a worried father, assuring him that “God is with us.” The story of Jesus’ birth is made known, and wise ones seek him, bringing gifts and worshiping him. Then, in order to protect Jesus, God leads Joseph and his young family to safety.

We celebrate baptism and its claim on our lives as we hear of Jesus’ baptism and God’s blessing upon Jesus as beloved son. Jesus knows that what he needs to do is a big task, so he finds help. He calls people to follow him. And they do. They drop everything and follow Jesus.

Through the first few chapters of Matthew, we follow Jesus from his birth to his early ministry as crowds are drawn to him, to hear his word, to feel his touch. Their hearts and souls yearn for his good news. To those who have very little, he finds their blessings and encourages them to be a blessing to others—to be salt, flavor, and spice in a world in need, and to be light, illuminating God from the hilltops. Jesus sifts through the worries people carry to the kernel of truth—seek first God’s kingdom and everything else will be all right. Through metaphor and imagery—salt, light, birds of the air, dressed-up flowers in the fields, specks and logs, and wise and foolish builders—Jesus knows where people are in need and how to capture their imaginations and their hearts. Jesus calls for his disciples and us to not only hear but also do what he has taught. His message is to bless others, be salt and light, seek God first, do not judge others, and follow his teachings. Will we be like the wise builder or the foolish one?

Including Children with Disabilities and Special Needs

Create an environment that helps children of all abilities experience God's grace by becoming familiar with the developmental terms, descriptions, and icons on the Children with Disabilities and Special Needs Support Map (in Stories, Colors & More, SCM iii–iv). Colorful icons (LG T) from the map and notes about specific needs are incorporated into each session to offer ways to adapt activities. (Note: While many of the activities could fit in multiple categories on the support map, for simplicity only those that require particular attention have been identified.)

Use the Visual Schedule (in Stories, Colors & More, SCM i–ii) to provide clear expectations and a visual cue for the group. By consistently using these tools, you will help your faith community discover and practice grace-filled ways to be the body of Christ with and for all children.

Support Highlight: Deaf/Hard of Hearing

D

Hearing impairment can vary from slight hearing loss to deafness. In most cases, hearing impairment does not translate to any other loss of ability. Children with hearing impairments use a variety of ways to understand, such as wearing hearing aids, reading lips, and using sign language. Assumptions should not be made about a child's ability to participate in activities because of a hearing impairment. Some simple adjustments can be made to make their experience more positive:

- Make sure the child can see you speaking.
- When you speak, make sure you have the child's attention.
- Speak clearly, avoiding exaggerated volume or gestures.
- Use additional visual supports whenever possible.
- Include the child in all discussions and activities, aiding in their self-sense and feeling of community.

A Few Notes about Children and Reading

All versions of the Bible are above second-grade reading level. Growing in Grace & Gratitude tries to provide a way to share the Bible stories while engaging both pre-readers and readers. Since the Holy Scriptures were written for adults, curriculum writers try to choose sections of Scripture that children can understand. Still, at times, the children in your group may seem to struggle to understand a verse or passage. When that happens, assure them that God will help them understand the Bible in new ways as they grow. Encourage a sense of wonder at God's amazing ways. Reassure the children of God's grace, a grace that does not depend on how much they know or understand.

Some of the following strategies may enhance your time with the children:

- When you write something for children to read, print the words. Many of them cannot read cursive writing.
- If an activity sheet has something to read, ask for a volunteer to read it aloud rather than calling on an individual child. Even better, have the group read it aloud in unison. If most children in your group are pre-readers, ask them to point to the words on the page as you read them aloud.
- Make a poster with church vocabulary words. Each week, add a word to learn, such as God, Jesus, love, Bible, pray, bless, thanks, disciple, praise, and worship.
- Give each child a few sheets of paper folded in half and stapled to make a word book to keep in the room. When an activity calls for children to write a word, name, or simple sentence, let them know you are happy to write it in their word books so they can copy it.

- Expect children of this age to occasionally reverse letters (for example, using “b” for “d”) and to make errors in spelling. It is not important to correct such errors during the session.
- If children need to know a repeating response for a litany or drama, write it on newsprint. Invite them to read it with you in unison several times before beginning the litany or drama. Adding actions to the words will help children remember them.
- Many children love learning through rhymes and songs. Try to include music in each session.
- Many children enjoy acting out stories. Invite them to act out certain parts of the story as you read it aloud. Challenge them to act out what they think happened next in a story. Some children will be able to act out responses to questions more easily than writing them.
- Be careful not to hold up children for whom reading comes easily as being somehow “better.” Resist putting them in the role of leader.
- Affirm each child by name—whatever his or her reading and writing skill level—two or three times each session.

Flyaway Books

Flyaway Books (www.flyawaybooks.com) is a children’s picture book imprint from Presbyterian Publishing Corporation. These books reflect themes of diversity, inclusivity, kindness, compassion, self-esteem, and care for our world, as well as retelling familiar religious stories in new ways. Flyaway Books titles are available at www.pcusastore.com.

Ideas for Working with Pre-readers

- Keep small pieces of scratch paper handy to write a word for a child to copy.
- If a child is struggling with an activity that calls for writing a word, write the word using dotted lines so he or she can trace it.
- Form pairs to solve puzzles. Encourage children to help one another—there’s no need to cover their papers so others can’t copy!
- If you observe a child struggling to work independently on an activity, offer to be his or her partner. If many are struggling, work as a group to complete the activity.
- If a child seems frustrated by writing, suggest that he or she draw a picture of the response or act it out. You also might offer to write what the child dictates to you.
- Offer old family-friendly magazines with pictures that can be cut out and used to illustrate a response or complete a project.
- When a child is trying to sound out a word, don’t be too quick to jump in and help. Whether he or she finally decodes the word or you provide it, affirm the new skill of reading and how hard the child is trying.

A Note About Candles

Growing in Grace & Gratitude suggests the use of a candle in the worship space for most sessions. Jesus said: “I am the light of the world” (John 8:12). The lighting of the candle reminds us of this and signifies the presence of the Holy Spirit with us. Most churches have a policy about candles and either lighting real candles or using battery-operated candles. While we simply state “candles,” Growing in Grace & Gratitude recommends using battery-operated candles for safety with children.
